

As you think about marriage which of the following thoughts do you hold?

A Relationships don't work very well. Most marriages aren't moving toward intimacy. They are fixed at varying levels of adjustment with deep emptiness and rigid distance under clouds of despair.

B Most relationships work fairly well. Many could be better but most provide a good framework for people to live out their lives. Couples learn to live with each other and accept their differences in a mood of toleration and support.

Whatever approach you hold to will govern the way you approach marriage. If you hold to the second, you will come up with quick solutions and miss out on the oneness God intended. The conference is designed to go deeper into marriages where couples can reflect and make responsible decisions on the biblical and relational dynamics for being MORE Married.
